Most of the artworks in Terence Nicholson's "Home," at Artreach GW Community Gallery at the George Washington University (GWU) in Washington, D.C., respond to a series of city planning directives and concerns, including the city's focus on homelessness and housing. These artworks include "Home," a three-dimensional sculpture in wood and paper mache, and "Shelter," a mixed media assemblage of discarded materials. The exhibition is sponsored by GW ArtReach, which promotes the arts as a means of social change. The gallery is located on Massachusetts Avenue NW, between 23rd and 24th Streets, and is open to the public from Monday to Friday, 10:00 am to 5:00 pm. For more information, contact Dana Rodriguez.
