Students in Community Engaged Scholarship Courses: Join us for the Symposium!

Thursday, Jan 26th, 2:30-4:00pm, REGISTER HERE!

Each semester, hundreds of GW students serve the local community through coursework. If you are among them this semester, you may have questions. Join us for this Symposium event, where the leaders of community serving organizations, faculty, and students will discuss how we can make this the best possible learning experience for all involved. The event concludes with time to circulate and network so students can have one-on-one conversations with community partners about their service opportunities.

Nashman Spotlight: Junior Finds Power in Being a Voice for Others

GW student Dasia Bandy will serve as her district's liaison to D.C. government in her new role as advisory neighborhood commissioner for single member district 2A07. The district encompasses most of GW's Foggy Bottom Campus and as far east as the White House. She won election for the post in November and now serves as the district's liaison to the D.C. government. Bandy will provide what she calls microservice on matters such as education, recreation, sanitation and anything that affects everyday life for her constituents and will communicate all matters and needs to whichever office needs to be addressed.
